Report of the Council.

At the close of another year, it is the privilege and duty of the Council to present to the members their Fifty-fourth Annual Report on the financial and general condition of the Society, and the progress it has made during the year.

Members,—The number of new members elected since the last annual meeting has been 29. Against this, 25 names have been removed, 11 from death, and 14 from resignation or non-payment of subscription for more than two consecutive years. There is thus a net gain of 4, the number on the roll at the present time being 454.

The number of members removed by death is considerably above the average, and includes several names that have long been associated with the Society. Prominent among these is that of Mr. T. Peacock, who for a period of 54 years has been intimately associated with the affairs and progress of the Institute. Mr. Peacock was one of those Auckland citizens, who, at a public meeting held in November, 1867, took the preliminary steps to found the Institute and Museum. He was a member of its first Council, elected in February, 1868, and with the exception of very few years, has served on that body ever since. In 1881 he was elected President, and in 1885 he was appointed a Trustee, a post which he held to the time of his death, during most of the period acting as Chairman. It is largely through his careful attention to the business affairs of the Institute that its financial position is in its present satisfactory condition. The Council are desirous of expressing their grateful recognition of the advantages which the Institute has derived from the soundness of his judgment, and his long devotion to its best interests.

Among other deceased members, Mr. H. Atkinson will long be remembered from his gift to the city of the charming Atkinson Park, Titirangi. Mr. J. Dunning is well known from his splendid donation to the Museum of a series of skins of the larger North American Mammals, a gift which, unfortunately, cannot be exhibited until the erection of the new Museum provides additional space.

Finance.—Full information respecting the financial position of the Society is given in the balance-sheets appended to the report. These show that the total revenue of the Working Account, after deducting the balance in hand at the beginning of the year, has been £1,918 18s 2d, showing an increase of £51 12s 7d on the amount for the previous year. Examining the chief items of the balance-sheet, it will be seen that the Museum Endowment has realised in rents and interest the sum of £772 0s 11d, as against £764 12s 10d for the previous year. £411 has been derived from the invested funds of the Costley Bequest, the amount for the previous year being £466 10s. The members' subscriptions have realized £425 5s, almost exactly the same sum as that received last year; but a new entry of £115 appears under the heading of "Special Subscriptions," being the amount contributed by certain members of the Institute towards the purchase of a highly-desirable addition to the Museum, particulars of which will be given on a later page of the report. The total expenditure has been £2,074 7s 11d, and the cash balance in hand is £218 3s 7d.

The invested funds of the Society have received a small addition of £35 28 7d during the year, on account of sales of Museum Endowments. The total amount, which now stands at £23,246 11s 4d, has had the careful supervision of the Trust Board, and is suitably invested in approved securities. The manner in which the funds are invested, and their apportionment, are detailed in the appendix to the balance-sheet.

Meetings.—Ten meetings have been held during the year, at which various lectures were delivered, and an opportunity offered for discussion. Several papers and memoirs have also been forwarded for publication in the Transactions of the New Zealand Institute. The following is a complete list of both lectures and papers.

I.-LECTURES.

- The Functions and Work of the Royal Colonial Institute: By Major Boosè.
- Animal Experiments and Medical Advance: By Dr. K. Mackenzie.
- 3. The Pre-European Peopling of New Zealand: By Dr. Buck, D.S.O.
- The Modern Theory of the State: By Professor W. Anderson.
   The Kauri Gum Industry: By Professor F. P. Worley, M.A., M.Sc.
- 6. Micro-organisms and War: By F. L. Armitage.
- The Scientific Measurement of Intelligence: the Process and its Application to Education and Industry: By Dr. J. W. McIlraith, M.A.
- 8. Glaciers of the Past and the Present: By J. A. Bartrum, M.Sc.
- The Upper Layers of the Atmosphere: By Professor P. W. Burbidge, M.Sc.

II.-PAPERS OR MEMOIRS.

- Additions to the Fish-fauna of New Zealand: By L. T. Griffin, F.Z.S.
- 11. Descriptions of New Native Flowering Plants: By D. Petrie.
- Notes on Pittosporum obcordatum: By G. O. K. Sainsbury.
   New Species of Flowering Plants: By T. F. Cheeseman, F.L.S., F.Z.S.
- Some additions to the Flora of the Higher Waimarino District: By H. Carse.
- Maori Anthropometry, No. 1, Racial Averages: By Dr. Buck, D.S.O. (Te Rangihiroa).
- Maori Basketry and Plaiting: By Dr. Buck, D.S.O. (Te Rangihiroa).

The attendance at the meetings has been remarkably good, and much interest is evidently taken in the lectures. This is as it should be, for one of the chief aims of the Institute is to provide popular scientific lectures on subjects of general interest to the community. The total cost of the course of lectures is not less than £100 per annum, and the time and trouble expended by lecturers and organizers is large. It is, therefore, gratifying to the Council to find that their efforts are appreciated by the people of Auckland.

Library.-The amount actually expended on the Library during the year has been £204 17s 7d, but some accounts for periodicals and binding are still outstanding. About 70 volumes of books, a list of which is given in the appendix to the Report, have been purchased during the year, and placed in the Library. It was hoped to forward other orders to London before this time, but funds have not been available. The magazines and serial publications subscribed to, a list of which appears on another page, have been regularly received, and made available for the use of members. A considerable expenditure has been incurred in binding the back numbers of these publications-a work which has been delayed owing to the difficulty in obtaining the necessary leather in Auckland. The usual presentations and exchanges have been received from foreign Societies, and several donations from private individuals have been added to the Library. Among these, special reference should be made to a complete set of the first 10 volumes of Curtis' Botanical Magazine, the early parts of which are now difficult to obtain, presented by Sir Edwin Mitchelson, M.L.C., also Baker's Hardwoods of Australia, and Baker and Smith's Eucalypts and their Essential Oils, donated by the Technological Museum, Sydney.

It is advisable to point out that the development of the Library is being much hampered by the great increase since the war in the price of books and the cost of periodicals and binding. Under each of these headings the cost is nearly or quite double what it was ten years ago; so that the progress of the Library has necessarily become slower than it should be.

Museum .- With the exception of the usual short period devoted to cleaning and rearrangement, the Museum has been open to the public daily throughout the year. The attendance has been excellent, although not quite equal to that of the two preceding years. Taking the Sunday visitors first, the register kept by the Janitor shows that 19,210 people entered the building on that day, being an average of 384 for each Sunday. The greatest attendance on any one day was 749 on June 5th, and the smallest 158 on January 8th. On the nine chief holidays of the year the total number of visitors amounted to 6,313, an average of 701 for each holiday. The largest holiday attendance was 1,575 on Anzac Day; the next largest 992 on Labour Day. From the want of recording mechanism, it is not possible to give the actual number of visitors on ordinary week days, but taking occasional counts as a basis for calculation, it is believed that the average daily attendance can be safely taken at about 250, which would give a total of 75,750. Adding to this the figures already stated for Sundays and holidays, the grand total become 101,273.

In the report for last year, the Council briefly stated that in the present overcowded condition of the Museum it is no longer possible to make any changes of importance in the arrangement or classification of the cellections, or, in fact, to do more than to keep them in good order and condition. At the same time, all new additions are being carefully received and suitably displayed for the inspection of visitors.

The additions and donations received during the year have been more than ordinarily numerous and valuable, but only the more important can be mentioned here. In the first rank must be placed the now celebrated Kaitaia Lintel. Evidently of ancient date, and found in a district bearing incontestable signs of former aboriginal occupancy, it nevertheless differs from all ancient Maori carving. It gives an impression of Melanesian origin, but no carving of similar character is known from Melanesia. As most authorities consider that it is of pre-Maori age, the best view to take of its history is that it is a relic of the ancient Maruiwi, a race long antecedent to the present Maori. But much enquiry and many comparisons are required before a tenable theory can be offered to explain its origin, and give a clue to the history of the people who made it. It can safely be said that no wooden carving has been found in New Zealand that offers so many problems for discussion. The Council have pleasure in stating that they have been able to purchase the carving, which is now the property of the Museum. Thanks are due to Mr. D. M. Wilson, District Surveyor, for giving early intimation of its discovery to the Curator, and for valuable aid in the negotiations with the finder.

Next in importance to the Kaitaia Lintel is a carved stone effigy of Horo-i-rangi, the legendary Goddess or Protector of the Ngati-tuora, a hapu of the Arawa tribe. The carving formerly stood at the base of a rhyolitic cliff at Thi-o-tonga, about six miles south-west of Rotorua, and just below the site of an ancient village said to have been the residence of Tutanekai, so well-known in Maori history as the lover of Hinemoa. As the figure is at least 300 years old, and has many associations, it was evidently desirable to protect it from the further ravages of time. With the consent of the Maori owners, the Museum was therefore glad to accept the offer of Mr. E. E. Vaile, of Broadlands, Waiotapu, to bear the expense of chiselling the figure from the cliff-face, transporting it to Rotorua, and forwarding it to Auckland by rail. Stone representations of the human figure were not common among the Maoris, and the Museum is, therefore, indebted to Mr. Vaile for an unusual and valuable addition.

In a small collection presented by Mr. W. A. Aldred (who has since unfortunately died) are three of the so-called "God-sticks" or Atua Whawhai. These are little carved wooden images in which an "atua" or god was supposed to take up a temporary residence, and then to declare his wishes through the voice of a tohunga or priest. Such articles are exceedingly rare, the specimens mentioned being the first to reach any New Zealand Museum. Mr. Aldred's gift, which has been in the possession of the Aldred family since 1848, is therefore an exceedingly welcome addition to the Museum.

Other important additions to the Maori collections are a carved bone pendant of unusual type, presented by Mrs. Lushington; two fine taiahas, an onewa mere, and a whale's bone patu, together with several minor articles, presented by Sir Edwin Mitchelson, M.L.C., on behalf of an Auckland gentleman; an ancient feather box of unusual type, donated by Mr. G. Graham; and finally a series of 40 water-colour sketches of Maori tatooing prepared by General Robley, and being part of the original sketches for his book on Maori Tattooing; purchased from Mr. Fildes.

In foreign ethnography the most important addition consists of two Chinese Temple bronzes about 7ft. high, with a circumference of more than 6ft., the exterior adorned with beautifully modelled representations of mythical animals. Bronzes of this size seldom leave China, and it is interesting to learn that the two in question were presented, about 1812, to General Macquarie, then Governor of New South Wales, in return for certain services rendered by him to China. After Governor Macquarie's death, the bronzes passed through several hands, and were ultimately brought to Auckland by an Art Dealer. Here they were seen and admired by many people; and finally, at the instigation of Mr. H. E. Vaile, were bought by the subscription of seven Auckland residents and presented to the Museum. A small sum required to complete the purchase was made up by the Institution itself, the owner of the bronzes reducing the price to considerably below the actual value. Other foreign articles deserving mention are an excellent suit of ancient Japanese armour, lined with chain-mail, donated by Mrs. Fyffe-Smith, and a remarkable carved screen from the Solomon Islands, presented by the Rev. W. A. Sinclair, at the invitation of Mr. J. W. Court.

In last year's report, mention was made of Mr. J. B. Turner's donation of his collection of Fijian and Polynesian ethnographical specimens. It has taken almost a lifetime to form this collection, and its extent and value are so great as to justify the setting apart of a considerable amount of space for its proper arrangement and exhibition. In planning the new building, therefore, the Council has arranged for a hall 130ft. x 60ft. for foreign ethnology. This will give ample space for the proper exhibition, on modern lines, of both Mr. Turner's gift and the large collections already belonging to the Museum. In the meantime, Mr. Turner is engaged in cataloguing his collection in such a manner as to preserve, as far as possible, a knowledge of the history of the specimens.

Few Zoological specimens have been acquired during the year, the most noteworthy being a series of New Zealand bird-skins purchased from a collector of old standing; several bird-skins presented by Mr. G. Henning, and a specimen of the rare frog Liopelma Hamiltoni, contributed by the Dominion Museum. This species has a very narrow range, and is apparently limited to Stephen's Island, in Cook Strait.

Finally, the Council have to record their special thanks to Mr. D. Petrie for his very welcome gift of one of R. and J. Beck's large first-class Microscopes. This supplies the work-room of the Museum with a much needed instrument, which will doubtless prove to be of essential value in many investigations.

The War Memorial Museum and the Appeal for Funds.—At the last annual meeting, held February 28, 1921, the Council gave a full account of what had been done up to the date of the meeting. Summarizing this in as few words as possible, and taking as a starting point the Citizens' decision that the War Memorial for the City of Auckland should consist of a combined Museum and War Memorial, to be erected on Observatory Hill, in the Auckland Domain, it was obvious that the first step was to obtain information as to the character of the building, and its probable cost. This being done, an application was made to the Premier to ascertain what assistance would be rendered by the State, and a reply was received to the effect that a grant of £25,000 would be made if a similar sum was obtained by public subscription. The major financial institutions of the City were then approached, with the result that the Auckland Savings Bank at once contributed the amount of £25,000, and the Auckland Racing Club £5,250.

It was now evident that the time had arrived for setting up an organization to lead the appeal for funds, and generally to act on behalf of the contributors. A public meeting was therefore held on October 22, 1920, when a Citizens' Committee was appointed to promote and organize an appeal for funds to erect on the Auckland Domain a War Memorial Museum, all questions arising thereform being referred to the Committee with power to act. With slight exceptions, this was the position of affairs at the time of the last annual meeting of the Institute.

The Citizens' Committee entered upon its duties with alacrity, and so far the result has been in every way satisfactory. In addition to the contributions already mentioned of £25,000 each from the New Zealand Government and the Auckland Savings Bank, and that of £5,250 from the Auckland Racing Club, the following noteworthy donations have been announced:—City Council, £10,000; Harbour Board, £5,000; New Zealand Insurance Co., £2,000; the Bank of New Zealand, £1,000. This makes a total of £75,250 from public institutions alone. In addition to that amount, the committee has obtained donations from many of the chief business firms in the city, bringing up the total at the present time to about £122,000. Of this sum over £80,000 has been received and invested.

The objective of the fund has been fixed at £200,000, it being the opinion of the Citizens' Committee that such a sum will be required to erect a War Memorial that will suitably commemorate New Zealand's share in the Great War, and at the same time give full recognition of the priceless services of its soldiers and sailors. As the amount in hand or promised was sufficiently large to justify the opinion of the Committee that the full sum required will be obtained, it was decided to call for competitive designs for the building. These designs are alternative, one being for a building of a comparatively plain character, the cost of which is not to exceed £120,000, the other for a building of more ornate style, the cost of which is limited to £170,000. The style of the memorial will, therefore, largely depend on the response made by the public to the appeal for funds.

As the conditions for the competitive designs, as first issued, were in some respects in conflict with the rules of the New Zealand

Institute of Architects, a conference between the two bodies was arranged for and held. After friendly discussion, modifications were made in two clauses, which have removed the objections of the Architects, and both bodies are now actively co-operating. It is gratifying to be able to state that much interest is being taken in the forthenoming competition, not only in New Zealand and Australia, but also in Great Britain, where the British Institute of Architects is giving much valuable help. It may be regarded as quite certain that numerous designs will be received. The final date for receiving designs, which has been twice extended, has resolved that when the competition has been closed, and the winning design is known, a selection from the most noteworthy designs will be exhibited, and the public appeal for funds, which has been held over for a few months, will be again resumed. Citizens and their friends will then learn something of the character and appearance of the proposed building, which the promoters trust and hope will answer their fullest expectations.

In closing this report, the Council must congratulate the members on the progress that has been made during the year—progress that has brought the Institution within a closer distance of its chief objectives—the erection of a suitable building, which in itself should be noble, dignified and attractive, to serve as the future home of the Auckland Museum, and also to contain a suitable memorial to adequately commemorate the trials and hardships, the labour and sacrifice, of the many thousands of soldiers that left New Zealand to take their part in the Great War.
